trees from Dotson at $2 each.

The case was removed from the State to Federal courts through diversity of citizenship. The purchasers of the trees fled their complaint of fraud with Judge McDowell, who entered an order permanently rescinding the contract.

Claims 17,000 Were Cut.

The statement of the case by attorneys for Dotson, which is filed as a record on appeal, alleges that the purchasers had cut away 17,000 trees when they abandoned the contract.

It is also alleged that the reason of this abandonment was due to the fact that the appellees secured knowledge that Dotson had purchased the trees at 50 cents each, and was selling them at an enormous profit. Dotson resisted the action for a temporary restraining order, on March 13, 1902; but, after a hearing, Judge McDowell held the contract void, and permanently enjoined Dotson from procedure for recovery.

Henry Clark (colored), of 1300 East Leigh Street, will not go hunting this season, for the powder which he had bought to fill his cartridges blew up t last night, taking Clark with it and haif of the house. When the would-be Nimrod came back to earth and regained consciousness he found that the damage was serious. His wife, who was in the house at the time, screamed for help, and some one telephoned for the city ambulance. Dr. Collier, who responded, took charge of Clark. He was servely burned, but was not seriously hurt, and, after his burns were dressed, Dr. Collier took the victim to the home of his sister, his own house being no longer capable of sheltering him. An engine company was also called, but as there was little fire, it was soon extinguished,

Clark had stored a large supply of powder in his house, preparatory to filling up his cartridges, which he made himself. In some unexplained way the powder was touched off by a spark, and there was an immediate explosion. The detonation was heard for several squares, and poople from everywhere flocked to the scene.
